TRAVIS' PAINTINGS -Having heard our friends telk so much about the grand historical paintings by Bill D. T. Travis, we were induced to pay the young artist a visit in his studio, and must say that we were perfectly astonished at his truly wonderful productions. His work is a full portraiture of Rosecraus' campaigning in the Department of the Comberiand. His renderings of batties, grand cavalry charges, etc., are wrought with nothing less than the masterly skill of inspiration. His representations of real scenes, both o landscapes, struggles, and heroes engaged are so faithful and exact that they can be recognized by the participants of that truly memorable campaign. High officials (participants) and judges have fully attested what he here set forth. We have no hesitancy in saying that all his scenes are so comprehensive in view that each object seen brings to mind the reality. His grouping of horses la action and floundering in the struggle of death are so fine and as natural as we have seen, and in our judgment are not second to the world-renowned "horse paintings" of Ross Bonhenr. His life-like portraits of the leading Generals -Sherman, Howard, Hooker, etc.-are so true as to be recognized at sight.

Mr. Travis is of our country, and as he is very young man we have promise in him of one of the greatest artists of the age. Owing to the earnest request of many of his friends, he has at iast consented to exhibit his series of paintings at the Masonle Temple one week at some time near at hand. We commend all. old and young, to embrace the opportunity and see for themselves, and to be truly appreclated they must be seen.

CRIMINAL COURT-SECOND DAT'S PR'CEED INGS.—Persnant to adjournment the Jefferson Circuit Court, Hon. P. B. Muir presiding, convened at 9% o'clock, yesterday morning. The first case called was that of Mary Chilley, charged with grand larceny, in which case the jury returned a verdle; of not guilty. In the case of E. B. [For the Louisville Democrat.] LINES:

TO THE MEMORT OF LITTLE GEORGE VARILLA. Little Georgie, thou art gone;
We shall never see thee more,
'Till amid the angel throng,
On that bright and happy shore

Where no sorrow ever dwells—
Where no tears are ever seen,
All is loving smiles and joy—
As is now, it e'er has been. Thy days, alas! were few:
And it seems so hard that now,
When we loved to see thine eye.
Or to smile upon thy hrow,

That the cruel hand of death, should call thee to the tomb, Leaving parents, friends to weep, In a world so dark with gloom. 'Mid the angel hosts above There's another—'tis our boy

Whom they love to smile upon— Whom they welcome home with joy. And the brightest of them all Is dear Georgie, whom we love— Whom we cherlshed here on earth, Who has winged his soul above. Parents. friends, oh! do not weep: Let our hearts he free from care: Let him come not back to us:
Let us go and meet him there.

FROM NEW ORLEANS. The Exploit and Destruction of the Webb-Great Excitement at New Orleans-Full Particulars of the Affair-Surrender of the Rebel Secretary of the Navy, &c.

[Special Dispatch to the Cincinnati Gazette. CAIRO, May 1 By an arrival from New Orleans I am in receip of full details concerning the Webb affair. The ollowing accounts of her movementa and destruc-ion are of exciting interest:

NEW ORLEANS, April 24 NEW ORLEANS, April 24.

About half-past twelve o'ciock to-day the people were electrified by the appearance in the river on the steam tug Webb, from Red river, passing by the sity under fire of our war vessels. She carried three heavy guna and bore the American flag at half mast. As she was about passing out of right, at the bend below, she hauled down the American flag and holsted the rebei colors, which were clearly distinguished by the throng of spectators upon the levee. We have few additional particulars of this me

We have few additional particulars of this most daring affair, but we learn that the guuboat Alliance has gone in pursuit of the daring rebei. Other vessels are getting up steam, probably for the purpose of going in the pursuit.

If the wires are not cat between here and Fort Jackson, we hope that information will be communicated to that fort in season to put a stop to the farther progress of the Webb.

The Webb is well remembered at the levee as a very fasting, in use at New Orleans before the war. She is painted white, and her decks and bollers are protected by bales of cotion. Her act in running such a ganniet, seems almost too darin running such a ganniet, seems almost too darin running such a ganniet, seems almost too daring the seems almost t n running such a ganntlet, seems almost too da ng for bellef; but there is every reason to acce t as a fact. It was pro ably conceived by sor laring fellows who hoped to gain a short imm ality by the desperate deed, now that all else out.

The telegraph to Baton Rouge is down, and has been for several honrs, which is probably a circumstance lutimately connected with the affair. It is to be feared that a similar precaution has been taken by the confederates of these fellows in regard to the telegraph to Fort Jackson.

Two shots were seen to take effect forward of her wheelhouse. When she passed Slanghter house Point she was, with the aid of pine knot and the rapid current, going at the rate of twenty miles per hour. LATER.

The wires are working only to within six miles of Fort Jackson. By the arrival here, last evening about 70 clock, of the gunboat Hollyhock, returned from the successful pursuit of the Webb, we gather the following particulars of the chase and destruction of the laster steamer. Three officers of the Hollyhock obligingly furnished us with the following facts:

The gunboat Hollyhock got under way in pursuit of the Webb at 12:49 F. M. She kept in sight of her all the time, gained upon her, and in running a disiance of three miles fired three shots at her. At McCall's Flais, about twenty-eight miles below the city, the Webb ran ashore on the left bank, when her crew set her on fire and deserted her. The Hollyhock ran alongside and endeavored to put out the flames, but was unable to do so on account of the inflamable nature of the cargo of the Webb, and from the great danger attending the expected explosion of her magazine. All the crew escaped but two, who fell into the hands of heaver, very much worn with fatigue, was found asleecp.

leaver, very much worn with fatigue, was found isleecp.

Lient Commander Reed, formerly of the United States Navy, commanded the Webb. He made his secape with the crowd. One of the persons captured is a boy named Henry Hinds. He says the Webb leit Shreveport a week ago yesterday. A little helow she took on two hundred and fifty cords of wood. A little above Alexandria she took on board fifty tuns of pine kucts and rosin. She came out of Red river last Sunday night at To'clock at the rate of thirty-five knots. Vessels were lying at the mouth of Red river, but the Webb was not molested, it being supuosed that she was mis taken for the Rob Roy, which had a little whill previously passed up the Red liver. The burning previously passed up the Red liver. taken for the koo koy, which had a little while previously passed up the Red river. The burning steamer was boarded by men from the Hollyhock, who stopped her engines and secured the rebeffag, which fiaunted so defantly.

As the Weob left New Orleans, yesterday, she had over two hundred bales of cotton on bos was the intention of this little pleasure party was the intention of this little pleasure party to take their cotton to Havena, and then run into Galveston. The Webb carried one 60 pound rifle gan forward, and 24-pound howlizer at. The following are the officers of the Hollyhock: Benjamin Tarbell, special pliot, commanding; H. Kent, Acting Master's Mate; ex-officers A. H. Wilcox, Acting 1st Assistant Engineer; Frank Royce, 2d Assistant Engineer; M. Sutton, Acting 3d Assistant Engineer; F. Kennedy, do.

STATEMENT OF AN EYE WITNESS. STATEMENT OF AN EYE WINNESS.

The daring and foolhardy attempt of the rebel steamer W. H. Webb to pass the ganntiet of the Federal fleet, on the Mississippi, well nigh proved successful; but, owing to the vigilance of the combined force, with good fortine, the effort falled.

Three houses were struck in Algiers by the shell thrown at the Webb. Cantrinos H. Bellows and Thomas Rhodes each had his house struck, but not materially injured. No person was hurt. A cow was killed. A report is affoat in this city that Mallory, Se etary of the rebei Navy, surrendered himself to our forces near Pensacola.

Still later reports from Red river say that Kirby mith is preparing for a flual surrender.

The New Orleans Times learns from the officers of the steamer Southwester, which had arrived the steamer Southwester, which had arriverer, that on Sunday last the ateamer Generardee came out of Red river, under a flag of true small sales were made at these figures. There hat been no material change in the market for corn since our last. There is very little strictly prime offering, and small sales of it could be made at 50c for ear and shell-ed. Inferior quantities are selling all the way from 45 qual to a rise of 3 inches at Portland. The weath- to 60c. Oats are dull and a shade lower. Small sales were made, and this is as much as could have been obtained f r them at the close.

Groceries are quiet at 30@33c for prime to choice qualities of Rio coffee, raw sugars at 16613, hard refined at 20621c, and New Orleans melasses at $1.20.

In provisions there is nothing doing. Holders of mers pork are firm at $30, but sales cannot be made at that price, except in a retail way. There is not doing in bacon outside of a fair retail demand, and we quote as follows: Plain hams at 19319c, sugar-cured 21c, canvased 19621c, Stagg 22c, clear sides 18619c, shoulders 15c616c. Leaf lard in kegs 20%622c. The tone of the money market continues dull. There s or ly a limited demand for it, and capitalists are free ders, on acceptable securities, and 9@12 per cent here is no prospect of a demand, for some time to me, that will be equal to the supply, and the probaillity is, we shall have a very easy market throughout ne summer, with lower rates of interest.

OF THE MOST APPROVED KINDS, FURNISHED by application to RATMOND & CO., apid decidin 74 Fourth street, near Main.

It crimeon'd the white marble temple walls.
And turned the Tyber to a stream of blood,
Boding Rome's future: Romulns' shield
Showe not more ruby than that rolling flood
The esn incarnadined; now from the west,
Out of that splendor gliding calm and slow.
There moved a figure with a hooded face
That pass'd into the dark from out the glow. III.

The A price less, she had come with sacred books,
That Romen gold might buy; but cold and hard
Tarquin, with mocking smile, smote on hie swort
And estruck the ground to call his body guard,
And apuru'd the scrolle the Sibyl humbly laid
Uoon the floor. "Begone, thou witch!" he cried
"Three hundred pieces of our hard-won gold?
Hag, dotard, hence, or we will tame thy pride."

Sancet once more, and Tarquin's Volscian slaves
Tolled at the rampart of the temple hill;
Again through boding bars of crimson light
The Sibyl came, and grave and proadly still Profer'd the books; but only four were left;
Still the same price she asked. The King arose
To strike the beldam with his dagger heft,
And from his presence drive her forth with blows.
V. IV.

Another twilight, and again she came
Gliding from out the brightness without sound.
Only three books were left; the envious fire
Had shrunk the precious hoard. The Gahiads beand
Cower'd before Tarquin's all consuming wrath;
The Sibyl isld the books upon his throne,
Drew her littlek hood overher wrinkled face,
And stood like Niobe now turned to stone.

VI.

"Lest opportunities," exclaimed a sage,
"flave voices from the wise; beware, 0, King,
Lest you reject the presents of the Gods;
From pride alone one-half life's sorrows spring."
Then Tarquin bout and from an ivory chest
Scoop's out two handsful of the Voicean gold,
And threw it to the Sibyl, slow her hand
Hid it within her mantle's ducky fold. VII.

Then gliding to the shadow of the wall-Shadow that ewiltly widened—she became,
E en as they gazed, a blurred and shapelees fog,
Tinged here and there with gimmer of a fame
Such as the sunset leaves in the dim west
Oresting the asline hitis: then flickering low
Like the marsh fire at eurrise, it grew dark
Throughout all Rome, save on one shrine below

How Professor Agassiz Lectures To return to Professor Agassiz-besides that there is a certain courteous charm in his presence, I do not know a lecturer who gives his audience so intelligent a compreension of his subject; his powers of explanation amount to absolute genius. We should be chairs and tables if we did not follow him into the inmost depths of his discourse. When it was announced that there would be twelve lectures upon glaciers some said: "It is mere pedantry for the unscientific to spend twelve evenings in studying a snow-bank." We went for our tickets, notwithstanding, and listen yet with attention that does not flag, though the lectures have lately been crowded four into a week. The opening lecture consisted of comments upon a series of views of Alpine scenery, with the stereop-ticon. The pictures were fine, and with Agassiz's elucidation, it was like traveling over Switzerland with this greatest of living naturalis's for a companion. Here was Mer-de-Glace, Jungfrau, Wetterhorn, the Valley of the Rhone, the great Glacier of the Aar, upon which the Professor had epent ten summers, and made observations about Wagner, the composer. One party continually; here was his house—a rude says that he has offended his patron, the hut of stone—here the slippery path up young King, and another that he has which his guests might climb in order to not. see him; and when the stir of mirih at the energy of his friends had subsided, he not sufficient time for my investigations," and went on pointing to Ges enhorn, Tschingelhorn, Finster-aar-horn-more horne besides than we could well crowd into our memory—bere towered Mont Blanc with its stupendous glaciers, as seen in different aspects-here were the travelers' landmurks-this was the highest accessible into a New England lecture-room the very shimmer of the topmost snowflake on this monarch of mountains, as

"They crown'd him long ago
On a throne of rock, ha a rob: of clcu's,
With a diadem of snow; Around his waist are lores! braced, An syalunche in his hanc!"

The quotation is not the lecturer's; he does not indulge in any poetical rhapsodies: but by his simple, orderly, and magnificent array of facts, transforms his whole audience into poets. This is not only the best method of teaching, but is the very sublime of courtesy and faithfulness. He will not allow attention to be diverted from his subject to himself. I remember that some years ago we had a course of lectures for workingmen, ten cent lectures, and Agassiz, with his usual daylight clearwe will now go on withour subject."

AGASSIZ OFF FOR SOUTH AMERICA. On the second evening of the glacier course we had a sketch of the lectures an ice period upon the earth, and a paren-thetically expressed hope that he might some day visit the tropical regions of firm his theory. The next day one of our there are no mobler men on earth, inquired if Professor Agassiz really wished to visit "Select your assistants, organize your ex-pedition, and send the bill to me." All promises well if the rainy season, which is approaching, does not prove a hindrance. The vessel having been delay-ed, we are promised another lecture or two, and I hope to tell more of them anon.

rose, and it bent softly to sleep. Stars shone, and pure dewdrops hung upon its bosom, and watched its sweet slumbers. Morning came with its dancing breezes, and they whispered to the young rose, and it awoke joyous and smiling. Lightly it danced to and fro in all the loveliness of health and youthful innocence. Then came the ardent sun-god, sweeping from the east and he emote the young rose with his scorching rays, and it fainted. Deserted his eyes, whether they flutter in at his winand almost heart-broken, it drooped to the dow or lie open before him in unguarded exdust in its loneliness and despair. Now the gentle breeze, which had been gamboling over the sea, pushing on the home-bound bark, sweeping over hill and dale by the neat cottage and still brook-turning the old mill, fanning the brow of disease, and frisking the curls of innocent childhood—came tripping along on her errands of mercy and love; and when she saw the young rose she hastened to kies it, and fondly bathed its forchead in cool, refreshing showers, and the young rose revived, and looked up and smiled in gratinde to the kind brecze; but she hurried forward, open and manly. He cannot de-quickly away; her generous task was perquickly away; her generous task was performed, yet not without reward; for she soen perceived that a delicious fragrance had been poured on her wings by the grateful rees; and the kind breeze was glad in heart, and went away singing through the trees. Thus, true charity, like the breeze, gathers fragrance from the drooping flowers it refreshes, and uncenclonally reaps a reward in the performance of its offices of kindness, which steals on the heart like rich perfume, to bless and to cheer.

A curious discovery has recently been made in attempting to repair the basement of Pompey's Pillar. A French engineer, having been appointed by the Viceroy of Egypt to direct the work, caused a few of the loose stones forming the basement to point, and so on. By means of the marbe removed It was soon found that they quartzose pudding-stone within the basenent. This cube bore an inscription in hieroglyphics, and was, in fact, the capi-tal of a column belonging to one of the temples of Upper Egypt, conveyed hither for the express purpose of serving for the base of the column. M. Mariette has deciphered the inscription, and found the name of Sesostris II., the father of the great Sesostris, mentioned in it; so that Pompey's Pillar, now 1,500 years old, rests on the fragment of a monument erected at least 17 centuries before the Christian era. A new basement has been constructed, with a passage round the stone, so that visicors may inspect the hieroglyphics, and the whole has been railed in to protect Boy Love.—One of the queerest and fun-niest things to think of, in after life, is boy love. No sooner does a boy acquire a toler who has recently been praised by the spiritualist journals in England as "one self a man, and to ape manish ways. He of the strongest mediums who has yet apcasta side glances at all the tall girls he may meet; becomes a regular attendant at church or meeting; carries a cane, holds his head erect, and struts a little in his walk. Presently, and very soon, he falls in love; yes, falls is the proper word, because it best indicates his happy, delirious, self abase-ment. He lives now in a fairy region, somewhat collateral to the world, and yet blended somehow inextricably with it. He perfumes his hair with fragrant oils, scatters essences over his handkerchief, and desperately shaves and annoints for a beard. He quotes poetry in which "love" and "dove," "heart" and "dart," peculiarly predominate; and he plunges deeper in the de-licious labyrinth, fancles himself filled with the divine afflatus, and suddenly breaks into a scarlet rash-of rhyme.

He feeds upon the looks of his beloved; is raised to the seventh heaven if she speaks a pleasant word; is betrayed into the most astonishing ecstasies by a smile; and is plunged into the gloomiest region of misanthropy by a frown. He believes himself the most devoted lover in the world. There never was such another; there never will be. He is the one great idolator! wealth! he depises the groveling thought. Poverty, with the adorable beloved, he rapturously with the adorable beloved, he rapturously spostrophises as the first of all earthly blessings; and "love in a cottage, with water and to Five Hundred Deliars," dainty delights.
